SYNOPSIS

West Side Story, a musical version of Shakespeare's tale of "star-cross'd lovers," has as its setting, not mid 15th century Verona but mid 20th century New York. The feud between the two noble families becomes a rivalry between two street gangs, one Puerto Rican, the other, American.

The story opens with a confrontation between these gangs, the Sharks and the Jets, led by Bernardo and Riff. After this, the Jets decide that they want a real rumble and enlist the aid of their former leader, Tony.

That night, at the dance, the Jets and Sharks agree to a War Council. And as these war rumblings continue, Tony meets Maria, Bernardo's sister. The ill-fated romance begins.

While the lovers dream of a better world, the War Council leads to the rumble under the highway. Bernardo kills Riff, and in retaliation, Tony kills Bernardo. Maria learns of her brother's death; the Sharks and Jets vow revenge; Tony and Maria struggle to preserve their love. The story draws to its tragic ending when Chino avenges Bernardo's death.

As the play closes and the Sharks and Jets assemble, Maria's reaction to her lover's death is testimony to the fate of romance and dreams in a world of hostility and hatred.
